Dear colleagues and friends,

Exhibition industry represents 3.2 million jobs. According to Global Economic Impact of Exhibitions, in 2018, approximately 32,000 exhibitions directly involved 303 million visitors and nearly five million exhibitors across more than 180 countries.

We are big!

It is time to celebrate!

GED is our industry’s largest awareness campaign and will happen tomorrow! Created and coordinated by UFI together with many national and regional industry associations back in 2016, this year is its fourth edition. I invite you all to take some time to celebrate the exhibition industry.

Last year, 85 countries and regions actively supported GED18. Hundreds of direct actions took place, 4 million twitter reach, and the GED Facebook group counted over 2,500 members. This year, we need to continue this effort. Our industry is sometimes underrated and I am asking you all to make it a great day and let our voice be heard.

There are four key messages for #GED19: Exhibitions are a large global industry; exhibitions are an effective and sustainable way of doing business; exhibitions can contribute to a sustainable world; the exhibition industry offers a variety of job opportunities. UFI is keen to receive “Follow-me“ videos, and Voices of the exhibition industry messages as part of the talent element, but all initiatives are very welcome.

In Johannesburg, we are hosting a business leaders’ breakfast where we will be presenting the power of exhibitions world-wide to business leaders. This will be followed by an exhibitions team building competition via a good old-fashioned South African Braai (barbeque).

Please spare a moment of your precious time to help us promote exhibitions as a valuable business platform full of exciting career opportunities, growth and development.

If you are still looking for inspiration for your own GED activities, I have a great resource to share with you – UFI has a long list of activity ideas that you can access through the GED website.

Happy Global Exhibitions Day to you all!

Best regards,

Craig Newman, UFI President
Dear colleagues,

This week, we will be celebrating Global Exhibitions Day (GED) all around the world. Since it began in 2016, this joint initiative between UFI and over 40 exhibition industry associations shows the power we have when we all work together. This day belongs to the industry – to our industry.

Thank you to everyone, everywhere for being part of it. Enjoy the day – from Sydney to Los Angeles, from Scandinavia to South Africa! And please make sure you share your activities with the UFI team so that we can continue to document GED’s global impact. You can do this by filling in a simple form at www.ufi.org/ged.

We’re almost through the first half of what has been a very busy year so far, and it’s also the time when UFI’s Working Groups are going through all the applications for the UFI Awards. Two of the Working Groups used their dedicated UFI Forums last month in Birmingham to invite shortlisted companies and teams to present in front of their industry colleagues and peers – who then jointly selected the winners. This added even more peer recognition to the UFI Awards. The winners for Operations & Services (Tüyap, Turkey) and Digital Innovations (Freeman, USA) have already been announced (see pages 8 and 10) – congratulations to both of you, and indeed to all the shortlisted entries for getting so far! The winners of the other three categories (Marketing, Human Resources, and Sustainable Development) will follow soon, so please watch out for these announcements. And last but by no means least, the annual Poster Competition is still accepting entries.

During the week in Birmingham, where a record 300 industry colleagues gathered for our UFI events last month, the UFI Board of Directors also elected our association’s 2020/21 President, who will take over from Mary Larkin. With Anbu Varathan, UFI will welcome its first-ever president from India – currently one of the fastest growing exhibition markets in Asia. The announcement was greeted with enthusiasm by the Indian exhibition community and beyond. The news will no doubt be mentioned again at the annual “Open Seminar” from our friends of the Indian Exhibition Industry Association (IEIA) this month in Delhi. As Director General & CEO of the Indian Machine Tool Manufacturers’ Association, Anbu is responsible for their show portfolio. And as the CEO of the Bangalore International Exhibition Center (BIEC), he also oversees a state-of-the-art venue that’s been built over the past 15 years. Anbu has played an active role in UFI for many years and the whole UFI team is looking forward to working with him in his new position. He will be officially appointed at our UFI Global Congress in Bangkok in November.

Talking of the Global Congress, please note that you can now sign up for our industry’s largest global meeting of the year here, which will take place on 6-9 November in Bangkok (Thailand). The theme of this year’s Congress is “Platforms of Trust”, and we will discuss how the crisis of trust in digital technologies and institutions can provide in particular our business with many opportunities. After all, markets are built on trust. The exhibitions we run, the marketplaces we maintain, and the services we provide – they all rely on trust. As organisers, venues and partners in the industry, our success is based on the trust our customers place in us. They invest in exhibitions with the aim of building trustworthy connections for their business – face to face, one meeting, one handshake at a time. Our industry’s unique role as a platform provider for trust is shaping up to be a core asset here.

All of this gives us yet another reason to promote and celebrate our industry this week.

Happy Global Exhibitions Day to you all!

Yours,

Kai Hattendorf
UFI Managing Director / CEO
Around 300 participants from more than 30 countries attended UFI’s events in Birmingham, UK, held at The NEC. A mix of speakers from inside and outside the business events industry covered this year’s European Conference theme of “The Organisers’ Future: Challenging Business Models”. In addition to the conference, two UFI Forums also took place.

“Sessions and conversations among our industry’s leaders from Europe and around this week have clearly shown that organisers are evolving and expanding both their strategies as well as their geographical presences, entering into new markets and business areas. As the global association of the exhibition industry, UFI is always working on sharing trends and developments. Holding our European Conference in the UK in Birmingham this year also allowed the UFI community to get ‘up to speed’ on political developments around Brexit and the upcoming European elections”, says UFI Managing Director/CEO Kai Hattendorf.

The conference was opened by keynote speakers Robert Peston, Political Editor, ITV (UK) and Nick de Bois, Former Chief of Staff to the Secretary of State for Exiting the European Union and Chairman of the Events Industry Board (UK). They both provided a compelling overview of the current political scene in the UK, discussing its instability and unfolding the possible consequences of Brexit on the exhibition industry.

Eric Everard, CEO and founder of Easyfairs (Belgium), shared his experience in a session entitled ‘Launch, clone, acquire’ on how to succeed in the exhibition industry, and revealed his expertise on how to plan for the future.

Eugen Alles, Managing Director, Messe Frankfurt RUS OOO (Russia) and Vasily Grudev, Chairman of Belt and Road Initiative Russian Committee (Russia) talked about opportunities in Russia – China - One Belt One Road (OBOR) – highlighting opportunities for organisers to benefit from government initiatives like this programme.

Gabrielle Weiss, Publisher and Editor, Trade Show Executive (USA) moderated a panel with US organisers looking to grow their business outside of their home market. Mary Larkin, Executive Vice President, Diversified Communications; Cassandra Farrington, Co-Founder and CEO, Marijuana Business Daily; and Dianna Steinbach, Vice President, International Services for ISSA discussed the opportunities and challenges they encounter.

Katie Crocombe, Director, 52eight3 Limited (UK) and Adam Parry, Director, Event Tech Live, Event Industry News (UK) presented the latest applications of innovative technology. Both outlined their different views and the impact of technology on organisers’ businesses.

In his session ‘What To Do Now? Industry Needs’, Denzil Rankine, Executive Chairman, AMR International (UK) outlined how organisers can move to “Exhibition 2.0” as a way to keep events highly relevant and to improve their performance. This session led into one of the two parallel deep dive sessions developing the subject.
All talks are available to UFI members in the member section of the UFI website.

Prior to the conference, UFI also held an UFI Operations and Services Forum, a two-day event for professionals in operations focusing on areas of logistics, security, safety, navigation and mobility, with industry specialists from a dozen countries attending.

In parallel, a packed to capacity one-day Digital Innovation Forum looked at how to implement the right digital innovation strategy, focusing on new solutions and sharing best practice examples from leading organisers like Reed and ITE.

The UFI European Conference also featured the association’s regular leadership meetings as well as a multitude of gatherings of UFI’s working groups.

As part of the agenda, the UFI Board elected Anbu Varathan to be the association’s 2020/21 President. Anbu Varathan is Director General & CEO of the Indian Machine Tool Manufacturers’ Association (IMTMA), organiser of the IMTEX exhibitions, which are among the largest machine tool industry exhibitions in the world. He is also the Chief Executive Officer of the Bangalore International Exhibition Centre (BIEC).

Other onsite activities included a tour of the The NEC venue, and the UFI Running Club. There was also a welcome reception for all delegates at the VOX, a sumptuous dinner at Warwick Castle, as well as city tours and much more besides.

This year’s conference was hosted by The NEC exhibition venue. The conference was supported by representatives of all four UFI Diamond Sponsors: Thailand Convention & Exhibition Bureau (TCEB) and Global Experience Specialists (GES), Qatar National Tourism Council (Qatar) and Shenzhen World.

Full details of the UFI European Conference 2019 can be found on the event website.

The UFI European Conference 2020 will take place in Goteborg, Sweden, 13-15 May 2020, and will be hosted by Svenska Mässan.
UFI Digital Innovation Forum

UFI Forums in Birmingham

After last year’s success, the Digital Innovation Forum was back again on 15 May at The NEC in Birmingham (UK), this time with the theme “How to push digital forward”.

During the sessions, the Digital Innovation Working Group members not only shared their vision of “how to push digital forward”, but they also managed to gather an impressive panel of speakers who were enthusiastic about digital developments in the industry and beyond, and eager to share their knowledge.

Seven speakers guided the attendees through this insightful one-day event, which was moderated by Stephan Forseilles (Easyfairs) and Jo-Anne Kelleway (Info Salons Group).

Peter Tubak (Messe München) discussed different innovative processes within an organisation, considering the question of how well an organisation is enabling the implementation of the changes that are needed for innovation, as well as looking at how this influences the overall creation of new services for our customers.

Jag Minhas (Sensing Feeling) explained how digital innovation around sensing human emotions can dramatically improve event and exhibition experiences. Especially now that attendees are increasingly dissatisfied with surveys, for example.

A presentation by Stefan Eckert (Koelnmesse) and Tae-Won Song (Samsung SDS) focused on how to improve customer experiences in venues by using digital signage. Koelnmesse invested in digital signage in 2018 using Samsung technology. The speakers gave the audience a unique insight into this joint effort.

Atul Todi (10times) discussed how technology can enable solutions to identify new regions and territories, and how to use big data to discover new audiences and grow reach.

Ade Allenby (Reed Exhibitions) and Baris Onay (ITE Group), two leaders in event innovation, then guided the audience through different journeys of digitising events with new technology, explaining how to select the right event technology, how to test new products effectively, and the future capabilities we should focus on.

The winner of the Digital Innovation Award 2019 – Wilson Tang (Freeman) – was recognised for the achievement, and presented the winning technology to delegates.
UFI's recent events in Birmingham kicked off with the UFI Operations & Services Forum, a two-day event for operations professionals focusing on the areas of logistics, security, safety, navigation and mobility. Industry specialists from a dozen countries were present.

Moderated by Giacomo Lucchini, Chair of the Operations & Services Working Group (Italy), and Stefan Eckert, Vice Chair of the Operations & Services Working Group (Germany), the forum was organised by the Operations & Services Working Group.

Operating in multiple sectors around the world, James Swanston, Founder of Voyage Control (UK), shared how to best manage deliveries for venue owners and event organisers.

Cesare Sfondrini, Business Marketing Platform & Market Place, Telecom Italia S.p.A. (Italy), shared a best practice example that could serve as a learning for the global industry. Based on his experiences working for Expo in Milan in 2015, he demonstrated how IoT data collection provides massive potential for business development and operational efficiency.

BIM (Building Information Modelling), a process involving the generation and management of digital representations of physical and functional characteristics of places and facilities, was the focus of the afternoon panel with Ignasi Pérez Arnal, CEO of BIM ACADEMY (Spain), and María Elena Alonso Mayor, Project Manager at FIRA Barcelona (Spain). For exhibition venues, BIM can be a powerful tool for business and operations, taking into account the continuous interphase between the venue itself (building and facilities) and the temporary constructions, booths and exhibition elements.

The first day’s programme concluded with a behind-the-scenes tour at the Bear Grylls’ Adventure Park. Delegates enjoyed discovering the extraordinary venue where guests are invited to “test their limits on some the world’s most incredible, mental and physical challenges”.

The NEC, which hosted the event, invited all delegates to a wonderful networking dinner at Air Restaurant, Resorts World Arena, to finish the first day on a culinary high.

The second day started with a panel presentation by Danny Stevens, Founder and CEO of Fielddrive (Netherlands), and Pim Schoonderwoerd, Product Manager, IT Services, Rai Amsterdam (Netherlands). Two companies, Fielddrive and Zenus, worked together closely to fine-tune and trial face recognition technology to create the world’s fastest event check-in. Their solution entails a seamless and secure online experience with fully encrypted biometric data. No photos are stored at any stage, yet attendees’ faces are recognised as soon as they approach check-in, and their full-colour badges are printed instantaneously.

“Improving the Customer Experience in the Venue – Using Digital Signage” was the best practice example shared by Tae-Won Song, Vice President, Head of Enterprise Solutions, Samsung SDS LTD Europe (Germany), and Stefan Eckert, Senior Vice President, Koelnmesse GmbH, Cologne (Germany). Samsung SDS LTD Europe Koelnmesse invested in digital signage in 2018 using Samsung technology. The speakers shared their thoughts behind this joint effort, pointing out how the process was managed, and what the results and learnings were.

As part of the programme, the delegates selected the UFI Operations & Services Award 2019 winner (see next page).

The UFI Operations & Services Forum concluded with a tour of the NEC venue.
UFI Operations & Services Award

2019 winner announced in Birmingham

During the UFI Operations & Services Forum, the delegates voted for Tüyap Fairs and Exhibition Organization Inc. as winner of the UFI Operations & Services Award 2019.

Tüyap was chosen for its web-based application that enables operations and services business units to monitor and manage exhibitor requests on one platform.

This year’s award focused on the best initiatives in the exhibition industry that have demonstrated clear improvements in operations and services thanks to the use of SMART technology. All submitted entries were carefully reviewed by the UFI Operations & Services Working Group and the three finalists were invited to present at the UFI Operations & Services Forum, which took place in Birmingham (UK) on 14-15 May 2019. Every entry showcased a valuable project and the shortlist included Coconnex (UK) and IFEMA (Spain). However, after thorough consideration, Tüyap was chosen as the winner.

“All the entries shared experiences and best practices that bring innovation and efficiency to our industry. However, Tüyap demonstrated a real increase in measurable productivity for exhibition operations,” says Giacomo Lucchini, Chair of the UFI Operations & Services Working Group.

To watch a video interview with Murat Düzenli describing the award-winning project, please see this link.

UFI’s awards celebrate excellence in areas ranging from human resources and digital innovation to trade-fair poster design and sustainable development. UFI will share the chosen projects at the 86th UFI Global Congress in Bangkok (Thailand) on 6-9 November 2019.

For more details on UFI award and competition programmes, please visit the UFI website.
The Marketing Working Group met alongside the European Conference in Birmingham to discuss membership matters and upcoming publications and surveys. The meeting was also an opportunity to continue talking about matchmaking, a topic that has been at the heart of the working group’s discussions since November 2018.

New members
Kelly Kanokporn, Exhibition Department Director at TCEB (Thailand), and Martin Clarke, Marketing Director at the NEC (UK), both voiced an interest in joining the working group and were both welcomed as new members.

Member announcements
Long-time members Sònia Graupera and Wolfgang Schellkes joined the Marketing Working Group for the last time. They’ve both decided to leave the group for professional reasons. The working group members thanked Sònia and Wolfgang for their valuable contribution and endless enthusiasm during the years they were part of the team.

UFI Report on Best Practices in Marketing
The first “UFI Report on Best Practices in Marketing” has been published. It serves both as a timeline of hot topics, and as a yardstick for all activities in the field. The report showcases the winning and shortlisted entries for all the UFI Marketing Awards that have taken place since 2010 – ranging from new brands to personal and mobile marketing to new show formats. In line with UFI’s main goal – to promote, encourage and support the business interests of the exhibition industry – all of this great work is collected here, compiled into one easily accessible document by UFI with the intention to help us all improve our events, worldwide.

UFI would like to thank all colleagues who have submitted their initiatives, and the members of the UFI Marketing Working Group who reviewed proposals, selected finalists and voted for the winners. Everyone involved has gone the extra mile. We highly appreciate all your effort and your spirit of cooperation in this competition. It helps us all to embrace change, innovate and move forward as an industry.

At the occasion of the meeting in Birmingham the Marketing Working Group has selected the winner of UFI Award 2019 which will be officially announced in the days to come.

UFI Industry Partners Working Group
Launch of a designated Award

The UFI Industry Partners Working Group met alongside the European Conference in Birmingham. It’s the third time this group of industry professionals has met since its inauguration in 2018.

Chaired by Ravinder Sethi, with the support of Jo-Anne Kelleway and Jochen Witt, the working group members discussed important matters and their position within UFI, as well as advancing their project to launch the first-ever UFI Industry Partners Award.

The group is delighted to join the other UFI Working Groups with their very own award to recognise the achievements of industry partners within our community. Group members Karla Juegel and Berislav Čižmek drafted a detailed outline for the award. The award will be used to collect best practice examples and evaluate how to best recognise synergies between industry partners and other industry players while focusing on quality assessment. This project will be fine-tuned until the UFI Global Congress at the end of this year.

UFI associate members interested in joining this group are invited to get in touch with Angela Herberholz: angela@ufi.org.
UFI Associations’ Committee

Working on promoting exhibitions

22 participants representing 14 associations took part in the UFI Associations’ Committee meeting, held on 16 May 2019 in Birmingham alongside the UFI European Conference.

Chaired by Chris Skeith, CEO of AEO (UK), and Kai Hattendorf, CEO/MD of UFI, the meeting provided an introduction into the committee’s objectives and means: UFI provides a global framework and core project support, and each association can add their own reach and insights. UFI delivers global benchmarks with harmonised metrics, and every association can present their national/regional results to their respective members, and benefit from the global comparisons.

Several ongoing projects were discussed:
- Global Exhibition Day 2019, for which many associations are currently finalising their activity plans. UFI detailed its support for the event, including the updated data on Economic Impact of Exhibitions and the UNSDG reporting data collection.
- Issues relating to the auditing of exhibition statistics, considering that adoption levels differ a lot geographically, while auditing is also proving to be more challenging than it used to be.

The next Associations’ Committee meeting will be held alongside the 86th UFI Global Congress on 6-9 November 2019 in Bangkok (Thailand).

For any questions about the UFI Associations’ Committee, please contact chris@ufi.org.

In addition to reviewing the UFI strategy and the new members, the UFI Board analysed the forecast for the current financial year, and approved the budget for the next financial year (2019 – 2020).

The Board members also voted for the new UFI President for 2021, and for the 2021 UFI Global Congress destination. More information on this destination will be communicated soon!

Next Generation Leadership Grant

Workshop in Birmingham

UFI awarded grants to five future leaders who have demonstrated exceptional initiative in driving change and innovation in their area of the exhibition industry. The NGL Grant 2019 is sponsored and supported by Freeman.

The 2019 programme started with an intensive one-and-a-half-day workshop, organised alongside the UFI European Conference in Birmingham. During this time, the NGL grantees had the opportunity to share their diverse knowledge and experience, and work together to set the milestones for the next six months. The workshop was also used to identify the topic and key areas that the grant winners want to develop for their session.

This year’s presentation will focus on the customer journey in the exhibition industry. This theme is of strategic importance in an industry where people play such an important role. The grantees will investigate the process by which organisers, exhibitors and visitors interact in order to achieve a goal. What are the main touch points? How can we integrate digitisation during this journey?

This year, the grantees will also explore the preferred methods of communication for industry professionals. They will do this by introducing a one-question survey into the registration process for the 86th UFI Global Congress.

In Birmingham, the NGL Grant winners joined the UFI European Conference and enjoyed conversations with the conference delegates. Speaking with experienced industry professionals helped the grantees to drive their project further and to start experiencing the benefits of the UFI global network.

This year winners are:

- Carolin von Tippelskirch, Protocol and Corporate Events, Deutsche Messe AG (Germany)
- Cinzia Zanin, Research and Development, Fondazione Fiera Milano (Italy)
- Fuad Musafir, Business Development Manager Exhibition and Live Events, Oman Convention and Exhibition Centre (Oman)
- Katie Thompson, Senior Content and Project Manager, The Design Group | Global Exhibitions Informa (USA)
- Laura Docampo, Head of Digital Transformation, Fira de Barcelona (Spain)

EEIA News from Brussels

European Parliament election results

The elections to the European Parliament took place with the highest turnout in the last 20 years. It is now time to analyse the results country by country and also on a European level, see which groups and coalitions might be formed, who will be leading which Committee and who will be influential, and start renewing old contacts and making new ones which are useful for our industry. EEIA has issued a Briefing to all European UFI Members that may give you a basic argument when you contact the newly elected MEPs or other policymakers on regional or national level. It contains a general description of our industry, facts, figures and contributions to EU political aims, as well as current challenges and policies. Please note that it is purely internal! If you did not receive this Briefing, you may contact barbara.weizsaecker@exhibition-alliance.eu.

Should you have any good contacts among the re- or newly elected MEPs, kindly share the name with Barbara Weizsäcker in Brussels – the success of your advocacy work is based on cooperation and it is always easier to get in touch with someone via a recommendation! Thank you!

This is the latest seat projection for the newly elected EP:

New era of exhibitions for UK organisers
(a contribution from TCEB)

The Thailand Convention and Exhibition Bureau (TCEB) used its 2019 UK roadshow and presence at the UFI European Conference to usher in a new era for exhibitions in Thailand.

The bureau has been instrumental in the launch of 17 new shows in Thailand this year, a record high that includes the technology show CEBIT, AV and integrated experience event InfoComm, medical event CPhI Southeast Asia and engineered materials event ANDTEX.

Much of this growth can be attributed to Thailand’s celebrated Thailand 4.0 central policy, an initiative that champions the growth of 10 S-Curve industries actively aiding the evolution of the national economy from one of labour-intensive to high-tech industry.

This is enriched by widespread and large-scale infrastructure projects, combined with fresh investment and partnerships such as the joint venture between Airbus and Thai Airways for a wide-body aircraft maintenance centre; or the collaboration between Thailand’s Institute of Field Robotics and Hewlett-Packard for development in AI and Big Data.

The UK roadshow included two days of meetings and an exclusive networking dinner for UK tradeshow organisers with Thailand’s ambassador to the UK, His Excellency Pisanu Suvanajata.

“Thailand is ‘evolving into a new era’ powered by the growing economies of its neighbours in the CLMV group and throughout the ASEAN, a fact reflected in its latest REDEFINE events campaign,” TCEB’s Director of Exhibitions, Ms Kanokporn Damrongkul told the audience at NEC Birmingham. “The United Kingdom is a top priority for Thailand and TCEB’s role has never been more valuable to UK organisers looking to trade outside the European Union.”

Shenzhen World Promotion Seminar

a resounding success in Europe (a contribution from SWECC)

The construction of Shenzhen World Phase I is nearing completion. As scheduled, the new exhibition centre will be open for business in July this year. In the meantime, a delegation from Shenzhen World attended the UFI European Conference 2019 where they held a Promotional Seminar. The aim was to introduce the latest construction progress and operational preparation of Shenzhen World to international professionals.

The Promotional Seminar was held at the National Exhibition Centre in Birmingham (UK) on 16 May 2019, attracting over 100 representatives from Europe and other regions. Mr. Wu Xiaoping, head of the delegation and Deputy General Director of Shenzhen World Exhibition & Convention Center Construction Headquarter Office, talked about all aspects of Shenzhen to the international audience – including its history, location, transport networks, economic strengths, and technological advantages. He also explained the reasons why Shenzhen World was built and how it would positively impact the global exhibition industry. The delegation warmly invited all international professionals to visit Shenzhen to seek new business opportunities.

At the seminar, Mr. Mao Daben, Executive Deputy General Manager of Shenzhen Zhaohua International Exhibition Operation Co., Ltd., gave some key updates on Shenzhen World, presenting the exhibition centre’s latest construction progress using video and other multimedia. This enabled everyone, even though they were in Europe, to really see for themselves just what Shenzhen’s construction site looks like today. They were suitably impressed with the efforts that have gone into this huge project and were amazed by the speed in which it has come together. They also extended their congratulations to the Shenzhen delegation for the upcoming exhibition centre.

Over 200 exhibition companies, organisers and institutions from 28 countries attended the UFI European Conference 2019. During the conference, UFI also held a grand networking luncheon in the name of Shenzhen World to introduce it to international exhibition practitioners. In addition, at the conference venue, Shenzhen World set up its own booth to showcase the latest construction progress and preparations for upcoming operations through presentation boards, videos, pictures and face-to-face communications. In this way, the great news that Shenzhen World will soon be built was shared with the global exhibition community, and people are looking forward to it being finished and opening right on schedule.
